is a method that involves allowing the mixture to rest for a specific duration. Subsequently, refrigerate the concoction until the fat undergoes solidification, facilitating its subsequent removal. This process preserves the distinctive flavors imparted by the fat.

“MILK WASH”

is a method that involves adding whole milk to a spirit, breaking the milk into curds and whey using a citric acid solution, and straining the curds off either through a coffee filter or in a centrifuge. The protein in the resulting whey-spirit blend will activate when shaken, resulting in a richly textured, fluffy cocktail—with zero aromatic side effects.
